Korea Genealogy Workshop Draws a Crowd

'Korean Genealogy: A Dynamic Tradition' -- a workshop organized on 21st August by the National Library of Korea for the Genealogy and Local History Section at the National Library drew 80 international and Korean participants.

- Speakers of the Standing Committee -

Three papers presented by Korean scholars provided a comprehensive overview of the ancient Korean genealogy tradition, tracing the significant development of formats, contents, and modes of publication of family Jokbo from the 15th century to the present, from paper copies to the newest CD-ROMs and internet sites. Private and public genealogy collections were described in detail. The seminar was an eye-opener for Western librarians, many of whom will now be able to serve patrons with Korean ancestry with more confidence. The National Library generously provided simultaneous translation and distributed the presentation papers in a bilingual volume to all the delegates.

The workshop was followed by an informative tour of the Ancient Books and Manuscripts Department of the National Library. Here, alongside an interesting exhibition of cartoons by a Korean master-cartoonist, the delegates were able to view original examples of historic and modern Korean Jokbo.

Acquisition and Collection Development Section 30 years

Acquisition and Collection Development Section celebrates its 30th anniversary by arranging a joint open programme with Serials and Other Continuing Resources Section by the title “Evolving business models for hybrid collections” in room 105. The section was founded in 1976.

10th IFLA International Interlending & Document Supply (ILDS) Conference 2007, SINGAPORE

Libraries the world over are facing financial challenges in collection build-up; one obvious way to address this is to establish some form of resource sharing between libraries.

While resource sharing sounds good as an idea, the actual pathways leading to successful implementation are subject to various inter-dependencies and obstacles such as rights and distribution. How will these issues affect your library's existing interlending and document supply service, one of the key services of any library's operations? Will these issues require new frameworks and processes to be drawn up to allow resource sharing between libraries?

The purpose of this conference aims not only at the sharing of collective knowledge about how libraries can tackle these challenges but also to open up opportunities for libraries, librarians and associated industry players to get to know each other better and work out suitable partnerships that will help to improve the provision of services at libraries.

ILDS gathers the "Who's Who" in the arena of Interlending and Document Supply services provided by the libraries around the world.

At this dedicated arena for professionals in the industry, delegates can explore and capitalize on the emerging opportunities abound and form strategic alliances.

Gain valuable insights, exchange ideas and build new networks at the 10th Interlending & Document Supply International (ILDS) Conference to be held at the National Library in Singapore from 29 - 31 October 2007.

Who should attend

- Library administrators, librarians, information specialists/managers in the public, national or academic libraries who are working with or interested in the aspects of Interlending and Document Supply services.
- Service providers who are interested in new projects/initiatives and approaches in the Interlending and Document supply developments.

Call for Papers will be in October 2006 and Registration will open in early 2007. See you in Singapore!

Hyde Park Corner in Seoul

Presentation experiment at Session 96

What was going on in room 301, on Monday afternoon? This didn't look like a normal IFLA Session at all. This looked like Hyde Park Corner in London on Sunday Afternoon, or like a market fair, where every salesman tried to sell his own product.

During the second part of Session 96, organized by the Preservation & Conservation Section and the Continuing Professional Development and Workplace Learning Section an experiment was going on trying out a new presentation form. Nine speakers were giving their 20 minutes presentation, each on their own Preservation Advocacy and Education topic, at the same time. Every time the 20 minutes were over, a whistle was blown, and the small audience groups had to change and join another presentation of their choice. In this manner, every presentation was repeated three times

The idea behind this rather unusual presentation form was to provide a more interactive communication between speaker and audience on specific topics in which both groups are interested. It also allowed for a variety of approaches to be shared as presenters represented France, Japan, UK, US and Uganda.

This created an atmosphere in which knowledge was disseminated in a very practical way. The general impression received by audience, speakers and organisation was a positive one. In the words of one of the participants, Colin Webb of Australia."This has made the IFLA Congress for me. It's opened doors of communication."

Organizing a simultaneous presentation session requires some preparation, but is a novel approach. Any section interested in organising a presentation in this form, please contact the P&C section or the CPDWL section to get the practical information. We'll be happy to share the experience and give a practical guideline,

Ingeborg Verheul (Netherlands, P&C Section); Susan Schauer (USA, CPDWL Section)

Volunteers

Approximately 200 volunteers, the majority Korean Library professionals and students, will be working during the IFLA World Library and Information Congress and are most happy to assist you. Volunteers are wearing special blue vests and name badges that make them easily identified, generously sponsored by EBSCO.

Library and information services for the blind: ground breaking international research

Thanks to funding from IFLA, the British Library and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (England), the Libraries for the Blind Section has embarked on a ground breaking research project, looking at the governance and funding of library and information services for blind and print disabled people round the world. This data has never been collected before and will help to identify best practice and key success factors. Libraries in the UK, Canada and South Africa have already said that the results will help them with future planning and the same must be true for many other libraries too.

Survey questionnaires have recently been sent out to organisations in selected countries. If you have received the questionnaire, please help by completing it and returning it as soon as possible. If you would like further information about the project, please contact Helen Brazier helen.brazier@nlbuk.org. The results will be published at the end of the year.

Women, Information and Libraries

On Tuesday, 22 August, a group of interested colleagues convened and worked on the start up of a new discussion group on Women, Information and Libraries (WIL). Interest was shown from eleven different countries, and from both women and men. The group will focus on women as users of library and information services, as workers in the library field, and as providers of information.

The overarching strategic framework is the UN treaties, programs and initiatives related to women and information to create a fruitful link between IFLA and relevant international organizations. The group will work according to the structure of IFLA. Plans are under way for the first program for Women, Information and Libraries to be held in Durban, 2007. The thrust will focus on women and information in the African context. The preparatory committee welcomes all those interested in working on these issues.

ASSABIL – Friends of Public Libraries Moving Quickly to Serve the People Displaced by the War Lebanon - Summer 2006

Very soon after the war broke out, ASSABIL started working with other NGOs and volunteers to meet the psychological and educational needs of the men, women, and children who were displaced by this war and were suffering from its effects.

- We established mini libraries at refugee centers in Beirut where children could come and play with toys and read books.
- Association members and librarians organized book-related activities for children. story-telling in the morning; opportunities for children to draw, paint, and sing nursery rhymes in the afternoon.
- Several ASSABIL members put together a theatrical production with some of the refugee children that was performed for parents and then taken « on the road . »
- We offered basic literacy classes for women.
- We organized training sessions for volunteers on issues such as: sharing public spaces; how to develop trust among the members of a group; and how to organize activities around books for young children.
- With the support of some of our funders, we were able to provide games, toys, books, paper, pens, materials for arts and crafts—in other words, whatever we could to support the activities taking place at the centers.
- We provided advice, support, encouragement to libraries throughout Lebanon who were struggling to meet the ever-changing needs and demands of the refugee population.
